

Biographies of Participants

Five University Collaboration on East Asia Security Conflict & Cooperation
Princeton University
December 12-13, 2014

Thomas Berger is Associate Professor of International Relations at Boston University. Previously, he taught for seven years at the Johns Hopkins Department of Political Science in Baltimore. He is the author of War, Guilt and World Politics After World War II, Cultures of Antimilitarism: National Security in Germany and Japan and is co-editor of Japan in International Politics: Beyond the Reactive State. His articles and essays have appeared in numerous edited volumes and journals, including International Security, Review of International Studies, German Politics and World Affairs Quarterly.

Kurt M. Campbell is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of The Asia Group, LLC, a strategic advisory and investment group specializing in the dynamic and fast growing Asia Pacific region. He also serves as Chairman of the Board of the Center for a New American Security and writes a regular column and book reviews for the Financial Times of London. He is on the Board of Directors for Standard Chartered PLC in London. Dr. Campbell is a Member of the Advisory Board of the UC San Diego School of International Relations and Pacific Studies, a Member of the Advisory Board of the Association of Marshall Scholars, a member of the Statecraft Board of the Clements Center for History, Strategy, and Statecraft at the University of Texas at Austin, a senior advisor to the 100,000 Strong Foundation, and on the Board of Directors at the National Committee on United States-China Relations. He is a member of the Aspen Strategy Group, the Council on Foreign Relations, the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London, and the Trilateral Commission. In addition, he is writing a book about his experiences in the Obama Administration working on Asia, tentatively entitled The Pivot: America's Rediscovery of the Asia-Pacific Century.

From 2009 to 2013, he served as the Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, where he is widely credited as being a key architect of the "pivot to Asia." In this capacity, Dr. Campbell advanced a comprehensive U.S. strategy that took him to every corner of the Asia-Pacific region where he was a tireless advocate for American interests, particularly the promotion of trade and investment. His vision and leadership were essential in the Administration's efforts to strengthen security alliances and partnerships from Northeast to Southeast Asia and throughout the Indo-Pacific region. Dr. Campbell was a key figure in managing the U.S.-China relationship, overseeing the annual Strategic and Economic Dialogue, helping usher in a new era of robust U.S. engagement with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, through the Lower Mekong Initiative and the East Asia Summit, and advocating for deeper American economic engagement and commercial ties in the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation meetings. Dr. Campbell helped spearhead President Obama's and Secretary Clinton's initial diplomatic outreach to Burma that led to the historic normalization of bilateral ties between the United States and Myanmar. In acknowledgement for his contributions in advancing U.S. national interests in Asia, Secretary Clinton awarded him the Secretary of State's Distinguished Service Award (2013) — the nation's highest diplomatic honor. He was recognized in the Queen's New Year's list of honors as an Honorary Officer of the Order of Australia and as an Honorary Companion of the New Zealand Order of Merit in 2014 for his work in support of American relations with Australia and New Zealand respectively. He was also awarded the Gwanghwa Medal by the Republic of Korea in 2014 for his contributions to the U.S.-South Korea bilateral alliance.

Previously, he was the CEO and Co-Founder of the Center for a New American Security (CNAS) and concurrently served as the director of the Aspen Strategy Group and Chairman of the Editorial Board of the Washington Quarterly. He was the founder and Chairman of StratAsia from 2004 to 2009, a strategic advisory firm focused on Asia with nearly two dozen clients in the fields of financial services, defense, aerospace, food, manufacturing, and retail. He was the Senior Vice President, director of the International Security Program, and Henry A. Kissinger Chair at the Center for Strategic and International Studies. He was also Associate Professor of public policy and international relations at the John F. Kennedy School of Government and assistant director of the Center for Science and International Affairs at Harvard University. He was the Vice Chairman of the Pentagon Memorial Fund that successfully built the national memorial at the base of the Pentagon in the wake of the 9/11 attacks.

Dr. Campbell previously served in several capacities in government, including as deputy assistant secretary of defense for Asia and the Pacific, director on the National Security Council Staff, deputy special counselor to the president for NAFTA in the White House, and White House fellow at the Department of the Treasury. He was concurrently an officer in the U.S. Navy Reserves, serving on surface ships, on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and in the Chief of Naval Operations Special Strategic Advisory Unit. For his service, he received Georgetown University's Asia Service Award, the State Department Honor Award, and the Department of Defense Medals for Distinguished Public Service and for Outstanding Public Service.

He is the co-author with Jim Steinberg of Difficult Transitions: Why Presidents Fail in Foreign Policy at the Outset of Power, with Michele Flournoy of To Prevail: An American Strategy for the Campaign against Terrorism, with Michael O'Hanlon of Hard Power: The New Politics of National Security, and he co-authored with Nirav Patel The Power of Balance: America in Asia. He is the editor of Climatic Cataclysm: The Foreign Policy and National Security Implications of Climate Change, and The Nuclear Tipping Point: Why States Reconsider Their Nuclear Choices with Robert Einhorn and Mitchell Reiss. Dr. Campbell was a contributing writer to The New York Times from 2000 to 2004 and is the author of over a hundred academic articles and newspaper pieces.

He received his B.A. from the University of California, San Diego, a Certificate in music and political philosophy from the University of Erevan in Soviet Armenia, and his Doctorate in International Relations from Brasenose College at Oxford University where he was a Distinguished Marshall Scholar.

Ja Ian Chong is assistant professor of political science and an associate research fellow with the East Asian Institute at the National University of Singapore. He previously worked with the Centre for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, D.C. and the Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies in Singapore, and was a Princeton-Harvard China and the World Program fellow. Dr. Chong's work crosses the fields of international relations and comparative politics, with a focus on security issues relating to China and East Asia. His work appears in a number of journals, edited volumes, and newspapers, including the China Quarterly, The European Journal of International Relations, International Security and Security Studies. Dr. Chong is author of External Intervention and the Politics of State Formation: China, Thailand, Indonesia – 1893-1952, Cambridge University Press, 2012, winner of the 2014 Best Book Award from the International Security Studies Section of the International Studies Association.

Thomas J. Christensen is the William P. Boswell Professor of World Politics of Peace and War and Director of the China and the World Program at Princeton University. From 2006-2008 he served as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs with responsibility for relations with China, Taiwan, and Mongolia. His research and teaching focus on China's foreign relations, the international relations of East Asia, and international security.

Zack Cooper is a doctoral candidate in security studies at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School focusing on how states alter their militaries in response to changes in relative power. Mr. Cooper is also affiliated with the Center for Strategic and International Studies. Mr. Cooper previously worked as a research fellow at the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments. During his government service, he was on the White House staff as assistant to the deputy national security adviser for combating terrorism. He also worked as a civil servant in the Pentagon, first as a foreign affairs specialist and then as a special assistant to the principal deputy under secretary of defense for policy. Mr. Cooper received a B.A. from Stanford University and an M.P.A. from Princeton University.

Christina Davis is Professor of Politics and International Affairs at Princeton University. Her research interests include international political economy, the politics and foreign policy of Japan and the European Union, and the study of international organizations. She is the author of Food Fights Over Free Trade: How International Institutions Promote Agricultural Trade Liberalization (Princeton University Press, 2003), and Why Adjudicate? Enforcing Trade Rules in the WTO (Princeton University Press 2012). Her research has been published in the American Political Science Review, Journal of Politics, Comparative Politics, International Security, and World Politics. Ph.D. Harvard University - See more at: <http://www.princeton.edu/faculty-research/faculty/cldavis#sthash.MBHHyXOY.dpuf>

Xiaolin Duan is a PhD Candidate in Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore, whose research interests include foreign and public policy analysis, East Asia security, and terrorism.

Aaron L. Friedberg is Professor of Politics and International Affairs at Princeton University, where he has taught since 1987, and co-director of the Woodrow Wilson School's Center for International Security Studies. He is also a non-resident senior fellow at the German Marshall Fund of the United States and a Senior Advisor to the National Bureau of Asian Research.

Friedberg is the author of The Weary Titan: Britain and the Experience of Relative Decline, 1895-1905 and In the Shadow of the Garrison State: America's Anti-Statism and its Cold War Grand Strategy, both published by Princeton University Press, and co-editor (with Richard Ellings) of three volumes in the National Bureau of Asian Research's annual "Strategic Asia" series. His third book, A Contest for Supremacy: China, America and the Struggle for Mastery in Asia, was published in 2011 by W.W. Norton and has been translated into Japanese, Chinese and Korean. His most recent monograph, Beyond Air-Sea Battle: The Debate Over U.S. Military Strategy in Asia was published in May 2014 as part of the International Institute for Strategic Studies' Adelphi Paper series.

Friedberg's articles and essays have appeared in a number of publications, including The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Los Angeles Times, Commentary, The National Interest, The American Interest, The Weekly Standard, Foreign Affairs, The Washington Quarterly, Survival, and International Security.

In 2001-2002 Friedberg was selected as the first occupant of the Henry A. Kissinger Chair at the Library of Congress. He has been a research fellow at the Australian Strategic Policy Institute, the Norwegian Nobel Institute, the Smithsonian Institution's Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, and Harvard University's Center for International Affairs. Dr. Friedberg served from June 2003 to June 2005 as Deputy Assistant for National Security Affairs in the office of the Vice President. After leaving government he was appointed to the Defense Policy Board and the Secretary of State's Advisory Committee on Democracy Promotion.

Friedberg received his AB in 1978 and his PhD in 1986, both from Harvard University. He is a member of the editorial boards of Joint Forces Quarterly and The Journal of Strategic Studies and a member of the International Institute for Strategic Studies and the Council on Foreign Relations.

Kiichi Fujiwara is professor of International Politics, Graduate Schools of Law and Politics, and the Director of the Security Studies Unit at the Policy Alternatives Research Institute. A graduate of the University of Tokyo (B.A. and M.A.), Professor Fujiwara studied as a Fulbright student at Yale University before he returned to Japan at the Institute of Social Science (ISS). He first joined the faculty at Chiba University, and then returned to ISS as an Associate Professor for seven years before moving into the present position. He has held positions at the University of the Philippines, the Johns Hopkins University, the University of Bristol, and was selected as a fellow of the Woodrow Wilson International Center at Washington D.C.

Prof. Fujiwara is known for his writings on international affairs, including Remembering the War, 2001; A Democratic Empire, 2002; Is There Really a Just War? 2003; Peace for Realists, 2004 (winner of the Ishibashi Tanzan award, 2005), International Politics, 2007; War Unleashed, 2007; Conditions of War, 2013.

Professor Fujiwara is a regular commentator on international affairs and Japanese foreign policy on Japanese TV networks such as NHK and TBS, along with BBC World Service, CNN, and NPR. He is also a film buff, and writes a weekly column on current cinema for the Mainichi Shimbun.

Selina Ho is Senior Research Fellow at the Centre on Asia and Globalisation, Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy. Prior to joining the Lee Kuan Yew School, Selina was post-doctoral fellow at New York University Shanghai, where she was part of the pioneering batch of faculty that taught a core class on the classics. Selina received her doctorate from Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), where she also received a Masters of International Public Policy (Honors). Her research focuses on politics and international relations, with an area specialty in China studies. She is most interested in water as a strategic resource, and has published an article and a book chapter (forthcoming) on China's transboundary river policies towards the Brahmaputra and the Mekong. Selina is currently working on a book project comparing public goods provision in China and India, focusing specifically on the municipal water sectors in both countries. In her book manuscript, she asks the question why as opposed to large-N studies of democracies and autocracies that show that democracies are better at providing public goods, the situation is reversed in democratic India and authoritarian China. She argues that regime types do not adequately provide explanations for differing levels of public goods provision. Instead, institutions and political culture are critical explanatory variables. Selina is also working on various book projects and articles on China-India relations and the impact of water politics on regional security. Selina previously worked for the Singapore government during which she was awarded a scholarship to pursue the Masters program at SAIS.

Ted Hopf is the Provost Chair Professor of Political Science at National University of Singapore, and previously served on the faculties of Ohio State University, Ohio University and the University of Michigan. His main fields of interest are international relations theory, qualitative research methods, and identity, with special reference to the Soviet Union and the former Soviet space. In addition to articles published in American Political Science Review, European Journal of International Relations, International Organization, Review of International Studies and International Security, and numerous book chapters, he has edited or authored five books. His most recent book, Reconstructing the Cold War: The Early Years, 1945-1958 (Oxford 2012), won the 2013 American Political Science Association Robert Jervis-Paul Schroeder Award for Best Book in International Relations and History and the 2013 Marshall D. Shulman Award, presented by the Association of Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies for the best book published that year on the international politics of the former Soviet Union and Central Europe. Social Construction of International Politics: Identities and Foreign Policies, Moscow, 1955 and 1999 (Cornell University Press, 2002) won the 2003 Shulman Award. Hopf received his B.A. from Princeton University in 1983 and Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1989. He was a Fulbright Professor in the autumn of 2001 at the European University at St. Petersburg and a former vice-chairperson of the Board of Directors of the National Council for Eurasian and East European Research. His research has been supported by the Mershon Center, the Ford Foundation, the American Council for Learned Societies, and the Olin and Davis Centers at Harvard University.

Keisuke Iida is Professor in the Graduate School for Law and Politics at the University of Tokyo. He holds a Ph.D. from Harvard University and has formerly taught at Princeton University and Aoyama Gakuin University. His major publications include Legalization and Japan: The Politics of WTO Dispute Settlement (2006) and International Monetary Cooperation among the United States, Japan, and Germany (1999). He has also published in major journals such as Global Governance, International Organization, International Studies Quarterly, and Public Choice. His current research interests include the politics of regional integration in East Asia, the politics of trade, including energy trade, and the political economy of financial and currency crises.

G. John Ikenberry is the Albert G. Milbank Professor of Politics and International Affairs at Princeton University in the Department of Politics and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. He is also Co-Director of Princeton's Center for International Security Studies. In 2013-2014 Ikenberry was the 72nd Eastman Visiting Professor at Balliol College, Oxford.

Professor Ikenberry is the author of six books, including Liberal Leviathan: The Origins, Crisis, and Transformation of the American System (Princeton, 2011). His book, After Victory: Institutions, Strategic Restraint, and the Rebuilding of Order after Major Wars (Princeton, 2001), won the 2002 Schroeder-Jervis Award presented by the American Political Science Association for the best book in international history and politics. A collection of his essays, entitled Liberal Order and Imperial Ambition: American Power and International Order (Policy) appeared in 2006. Ikenberry is also co-author of Crisis of American Foreign Policy: Wilsonianism in the 21st Century (Princeton 2009), which explores the Wilsonian legacy in contemporary American foreign policy. Ikenberry has also the editor or co-editor of fourteen books, including America Unrivaled: The Future of the Balance of Power (Cornell, 2002), The End of the West? Crisis and Change in Atlantic Order (Cornell 2008) and Unipolarity and International Relations Theory (Cambridge, 2011). Ikenberry has authored 127 journal articles, essays, and book chapters.

Professor Ikenberry is the co-director of the Princeton Project on National Security, and he is the co-author, along with Anne-Marie Slaughter, of the final report, Forging a World of Liberty Under Law. Among his many activities, Professor Ikenberry served as a member of the Policy Planning Staff in 1991-92, as a member of an advisory group at the State Department in 2003-04, and as a member of the Council on Foreign Relations Task Force on U.S.-European relations, the so-called Kissinger-Summers commission. He is also a reviewer of books on political and legal affairs for Foreign Affairs.

Jia Qingguo has been a full professor at Peking University since 1996 and the associate dean of the School of International Studies since 1999. He has also been a visiting professor at the University of Vienna, University of Sydney, Cornell University and University of Vermont. He has held positions as research fellow at the Institute of Global Conflict and Cooperation, University of California, and at the Brookings Institute in Washington, DC.

Huang Jing is a Lee Foundation Professor on US-China Relations and Director of Centre on Asia and Globalization (CAG) at Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy (LKYSPP). As an internationally recognized expert on Chinese politics, China's foreign relations and security issues in Asia-Pacific, Huang has written three books and numerous journal articles, book chapters, policy papers, and op-eds on Chinese politics, China's development strategy, China's foreign policy, US-China relations, the military, and security issues in the Asia-Pacific. His book, Factionalism in Chinese Communist Politics (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2000), won the prestigious Masayoshi Ohira Memorial Prize in 2002. Huang is also a columnist for several English and Chinese newspapers and magazines.

Huang is on the Board of Directors of the Fujitsu-JAIMS Foundation Japan, the Board of Directors Keppel Land, the Advisory Board of the European-House Ambrosetti, the Steering Committee of the NUS Research Institute in Suzhou, and the WEF Global Agenda Council. He also serves as a Senior Overseas Economic Analyst for China's Xinhua News Agency. Before joining the LKYSPP, Huang was a Senior Fellow at the John Thornton China Center at the Brookings Institution (2004-2008). He also taught at Harvard University (1993-1994), Utah State University (1994-2004) and Stanford University (2002-2003). Huang received his Ph.D. in Political Science from Harvard University, MA from Fudan University, and BA from Sichuan University.

Huang was a Residential Fellow at the Rockefeller Foundation Bellagio Center in 2012 and is recently named a Richard von Weizsäcker Fellow (2013-14) from the Robert Bosch Stiftung.

Sung-han Kim is professor of International Relations at the Graduate School of International Studies (GSIS) since August 2007 and director of Ilmin International Relations Institute, Korea University since September 2013. He has recently served as a Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs and Trade, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade in 2012-2013. Before entering the government, he was a professor and associate dean at GSIS, Korea University. He was a professor from 1994 to 2007 at the Institute of Foreign Affairs and National Security (IFANS), Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Trade. Prior to that, he had worked as a research fellow at the Institute of Social Sciences and as expert advisor to the Prime Minister's Committee for Globalization (1992-1994). Dr. Kim was the Chair of World Economic Forum's Global Agenda Council on WMD in 2013-4. He is now the Chair of the Korean National Committee of CSCAP (Council on Security Cooperation in the Asia Pacific) after having completed his service as a Vice President of the Korean Association of International Studies; President of Korean Association of American Politics (KAAP); and Chairman of the Vision Council for the ROK-U.S. Security Policy Initiative. After the North Korean military attack to the Cheonan naval corvette in March 2010, he served as a member of the Presidential Commission for National Security Review (May – August 2010) and the Presidential Commission for Defense Reform (July – December 2010). He also advised the Foreign Relations Committee of the National Assembly, the Ministry of Unification, the Ministry of Defense, and the National Intelligence Service. From May 2008 to January 2012, he participated in the Presidential Advisory Council for Foreign Affairs and National Security, which consisted of ten security experts. Dr. Kim specializes in U.S. foreign policy and international security with a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin, U.S.A. in 1992. His recent contributed articles to scholarly journals include “From Blood Alliance to Strategic Alliance”, “The End of Humanitarian Intervention?”; “North Korea: Between Survival and Glory”; and “Exploring a Northeast Asian Peace and Security Mechanism.” He is married and has one daughter. Email) ksunghan@korea.ac.kr

Alexander Korolev is a Research Fellow at the Centre on Asia and Globalisation at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore. Concurrently, Alex has been an Assistant Professor of political science at the School of Asian Studies of the National Research University Higher School of Economics (Moscow) since September 2012. He received an M.A. degree in international relations from Zhou Enlai School of Government, Nankai University (2009), and PhD in political science from the Chinese University of Hong Kong (2012). He was a visiting researcher at the Political Science Department of Brown University (2011-2012). His research interests include international relations theory and comparative politics, political transition in former socialist countries, politics of social reforms, and theory and practice of democracy.

Alexander Lanoszka is the Stanton Nuclear Security Postdoctoral Fellow at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His research focuses on alliance politics and nuclear statecraft. His current project examines the conditions under which formal security guarantees break so as to cause nuclear proliferation, and how guarantors can react to such developments. His peer-reviewed work has appeared in International Theory and he has produced public affairs commentary for The Monkey Cage (Washington Post) and the online edition of The National Interest. He received his PhD at Princeton University in spring 2014 and his undergraduate education at the University of Windsor in Canada.

Jae-Seung Lee is Professor of International Studies at Korea University and Director of Energy & Environmental Policy at KU-KIST Green School. Professor Lee also serves as Managing Director of KU-KIEP-SBS EU Centre, sponsored by the European Commission., and Vice President of Ilmin International Relations Institute (IIRI). His current research includes energy security of Korea and regional energy cooperation, among others, and he has published numerous books and articles in these fields. He served as a Member of Policy Advisory Board of the Presidential Secretariat (Foreign and Security Affairs) and Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He has contributed op-ed articles to major Korean newspapers and has commented on international affairs for BBC, CNN and Korean broadcast stations. Professor Lee holds a BA in political science from Seoul National University, and an MA / PhD in political science from Yale University. During the year of 2011-2012, Professor Lee also joined Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center and Center for East Asian Studies of Stanford University as a visiting scholar. He has previously taught at Yale University, Seoul National University and the Institute of Foreign Affairs and National Security (IFANS) of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

David Leheny is the Henry Wendt III '55 Professor of East Asian Studies. Trained as a political scientist, Leheny taught in the Department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison from 1998 until 2007. Before that, he served as a research associate (joshu) in the Institute of Social Science at the University of Tokyo. Under the auspices of the International Affairs Fellowship from the Council in Foreign Relations, he served for most of 2000 as Regional Affairs Officer in the Office of the Coordinator for Counterterrorism, U.S. Department of State.

Most of Leheny's diverse research projects involve Japan's reaction to and adoption of international norms, or standards of behavior that have prescriptive and constitutive effects on state action. He is the author of two books, both published by Cornell University Press. Think Global, Fear Local: Sex, Violence, and Anxiety, published in 2006, examines how two different norms involving security and policing became useful for political elites interested in expanding the coercive authority of the state. In covering counterterrorism rules and laws regarding "compensated dating" (enjo kô sai), Think Global, Fear Local broadly engages Japanese debates about crime, sexual morality, and regional security. His previous book, The Rules of Play: National Identity and the Shaping of Japanese Leisure, investigated Japanese leisure and tourism policies in the 20th century, demonstrating how they were shaped not only by changing industrial policy formulations but also by long-term constructions of Japan as an advanced industrial nation like any other, and yet as culturally unique. Choice magazine named The Rules of Play one of its "Outstanding Academic Titles" of 2003.

Along with Kay Warren, the Charles B. Tillinghast Jr. '32 Professor of International Studies and Professor of Anthropology at Brown University, Leheny is co-editor of the manuscript Inescapable Solutions: Japanese Aid and the Construction of Global Development. Written and edited with support of the Abe Seminar Program at the Social Science Research Council and the Japan Foundation's Center for Global Partnership, Inescapable Solutions draws on anthropological, sociological, and political theories of development to engage recent debates about Japanese aid policy. With chapters by Japanese aid practitioners and an international collection of scholars, the book argues that Japanese aid practices have increasingly been shaped by global "human security" initiatives, but that the consequences are too complex to be reduced to questions about its effectiveness or ineffectiveness. It also argues that development assistance can have profound implications not only for recipients but for donors as well.

Leheny has received fellowships and awards from the Council on Foreign Relations, the Social Science Research Council, the Japan Foundation's Center for Global Partnership, and the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science, among others. He is also the winner of the Chancellor's Distinguished Teaching Award at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 2007. As of 2007, he will serve on the Japan Advisory Board of the Social Science Research Council.

Michael Mastanduno is the Nelson A. Rockefeller Professor of Government and Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at Dartmouth. His areas of research and teaching specialization include international relations, U.S. foreign policy, and the politics of the world economy. His current research concerns the rise of China and its implications for international economics and security. His articles have appeared in many journals including World Politics, International Organization, International Studies Quarterly, and International Security. He is author or editor of numerous books including Economic Containment, International Relations Theory and the Asia-Pacific, Unipolar Politics, U.S. Hegemony and International Organizations, and International Relations Theory and the Consequences of Unipolarity. He is co-author, with John Ikenberry and Joseph Grieco, of Introduction to International Relations: Enduring Problems and Contemporary Issues. Professor Mastanduno lectures frequently in Europe and Asia and has been a guest faculty member at the University of Tokyo, the Graduate School of Economics and International Relations at Milan, and the Geneva Center for Security Policy. He has been awarded fellowships from the Brookings Institution, the Salzburg Seminar, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Center for Global Partnership, and the East-West Center. He served during sabbatical from Dartmouth as an assistant in the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative. He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Satoru Mori is Professor in the Department of Global Politics of the Faculty of Law at Hosei University in Tokyo. His general fields of interest are international politics and U.S. national security and foreign policy. His current research interests include U.S. strategy in Asia, the nexus of security policy and international economic relations in American grand strategy, and the possibilities and limits of “peaceful change” in the contemporary international system and their implications for Japan. He is on sabbatical leave until March 2015, and is currently a visiting researcher at Princeton University’s Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs and the George Washington University’s Sigur Center for Asian Studies. Dr. Mori received his Ph.D. from the Graduate School for Law and Politics at the University of Tokyo in 2007. From 1996 to 2001, Dr. Mori served in the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs as a career diplomat. He earned an LLB degree from Kyoto University in 1995, and LLM degrees from Columbia University Law School and Kyoto University Graduate School of Law. His Ph.D. dissertation was published as a book titled The Vietnam War and Alliance Diplomacy from the University of Tokyo Press in 2009 (in Japanese), and was awarded the Hiroshi Shimizu Prize for Distinguished Monograph by the Japanese Association of American Studies and the Sakuradakai Political Science Study Prize by the Sakuradakai Foundation. Dr. Mori is and has been involved in policy research projects organized by the Japan Institute of International Affairs (JIIA), the Japan Center for International Exchange (JCIE), the Institute for International Policy Studies (IIPS), the Tokyo Foundation, among others. His most recent piece discusses Japanese and U.S. options for dealing with China in the East China Sea – “Countering Beijing’s Unilateral Revisionist Actions in the East China Sea: The Case for a Restraint Compellence Approach,” in Richard Pearson ed., East China Sea Tensions: Perspectives and Implications, Washington DC: The Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation (2014). He has delivered remarks at seminars and events organized by the U.S. Department of State, the U.S. Pacific Command, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Center for a New American Security, the Stimson Center, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the Center for the National Interest, the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation, among others. Prior to becoming a member of the faculty at Hosei University in 2008, Dr. Mori was a research fellow at the International Center for Comparative Law and Politics at the University of Tokyo, and was on a security studies scholarship program organized by the Research Institute for Peace and Security (RIPS) and the Japan Foundation.

Nagafumi Nakamura is currently a Ph.D student at the University of Tokyo. He will be a JSPS (Japan Society for the Promotion of Science) Fellow (expected in April 2015). His work has primarily been in International Politics focusing on security issues broadly defined. He has published articles, such as “The Paradox of Humanitarianism: Rethinking International Responses to Humanitarian Crises after the End of the Cold War” (Japanese), Peace Studies 43, 2014. He is a winner of the 29th Eisaku Sato Essay Contest Award (2013, UNU).

Evans J.R. Revere is Nonresident Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institution’s Center for East Asia Policy Studies. He is also Senior Advisor at the Albright Stonebridge Group, providing strategic advice to clients on Korea, Japan, and China. Revere is a frequent participant in Track 1.5 and Track 2 dialogues involving U.S. relations with the PRC and Taiwan, the two Koreas, and Japan. His commentary on U.S. policy in the Asia-Pacific region appears frequently in the U.S. and Asia-Pacific press.

He taught at Princeton University’s Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs (2010-2011) and was president/CEO of The Korea Society (2007-2010). In 2007, he retired as one of the U.S. State Department’s top Asia hands, including service as Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary and Acting Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs and Deputy Chief of Mission and Chargé d’Affaires in Seoul. He also served in the U.S. embassies in Beijing and Tokyo. He has extensive experience negotiating with the DPRK. He is fluent in Chinese, Korean, and Japanese, and is a graduate of Princeton University, a veteran of the U.S. Air Force, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Hyunji Rim is a PhD candidate at the School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), Johns Hopkins University, where she works on East Asian security issues including energy politics, nuclear proliferation, and US alliance. Previously, she worked an intern at International Atomic Energy Agency, Vienna and Reuters, Seoul. She has presented papers on US-ROK strategic alliance, new continentalism, and nuclear energy security at international conferences. She holds an MA in International Studies from the Graduate School of International Studies, Korea University and a BA in French Language & Literature and Korea Studies from Ewha Woman’s University.

Gilbert Rozman retired from Princeton in 2013 after a 50-year association and 43 years on the faculty. In that same year he started serving as editor-in-chief of The Asan Forum. In 2012- early 2015 he will have authored or edited nine books, as below. Also, a list of his main articles in 2014 follows.

Books:

East Asian National Identities: Common Roots and Chinese Exceptionalism (ed., Woodrow Wilson Center Press and Stanford University Press, 2012)

China's Foreign Policy: Who Makes It, and How Is It Made? (ed., Asan Institute, 2012).

Joint U.S.-Korea Academic Studies--Asia at a Tipping Point: Korea, the Rise of China, and the Impact of Leadership Transitions (ed. Korea Economic Institute, 2012).

National Identities and Bilateral Relations: Widening Gaps in East Asia and Chinese Demonization of the United States (ed., Woodrow Wilson Center Press and Stanford University Press, 2013).

Joint U.S.-Korea Academic Studies--Asia's Uncertain Future: Korea, China's Aggressiveness, and New Leadership (ed., Korea Economic Institute, 2013).

The Sino-Russian Challenge to the World Order: National Identities, Bilateral Relations, and East vs. West in the 2010s (Woodrow Wilson Center Press and Stanford University Press, 2014).

Joint U.S.-Korea Academic Studies--Asia's Slippery Slope: Triangular Tensions, Identity Gaps, Conflicting Regionalism, and Diplomatic Impasse toward North Korea (ed., Korea Economic Institute, 2014).

Misunderstanding Asia: International Relations Theory and Asian Studies over Half a Century (ed., Palgrave Macmillan, 2015).

Asia's Alliance Triangle: U.S.-Japan-South Korea Relations at a Tumultuous Time (ed. through The Asan Forum, Palgrave Macmillan, 2015).

Articles in 2014:

Transnational Identity and Order in Northeast Asia," in Key-young Son and Yong-Wook Lee, eds., China's Rise and Regional Integration in East Asia: Hegemony or Community? (Routledge), pp. 95-114.

"A National Identity Approach to Japan's Late 2013 Foreign Policy Thinking," The Asan Forum, Vol. 2, No. 1.

"The Sino-U.S. National Identity Gap, Australia, and the Formation of an Asia-Pacific Community," Asian Survey, Vol. 54 No. 2 (Mar.-Apr.), pp.

"Japan's National Identity Gaps: A Framework for Analysis of Relations in Asia," in Gilbert Rozman, ed., Joint U.S.-Korea Academic Studies-- (Korea Economic Institute).

"China-South Korea-U.S. Relations," in Gilbert Rozman, ed., Joint U.S.-Korea Academic Studies-- (Korea Economic Institute).

"The Legacy of Communism and International Relations in the 2010s," The Asan Forum, Vol. 2, No. 4.

“Review Article: Japanese Publications on Japan-Russia Relations,” The Asan Forum, Vol. 2, No. 4.

“Japan’s Approach to Southeast Asia in the Context of Sino-Japanese Relations,” The Asan Forum, Vol. 2, No. 5.

“Asia for the Asians: Why Chinese-Russian Friendship Is Here to Stay,” Foreign Affairs website, Nov. 3

“The Sino-Russia Partnership Is Stronger than the West Thinks,” The WorldPost, Nov. 11

“Sino-Russian Relations and U.S. Alliances in Northeast Asia,” Nottingham Post, Nov. 15

“The Russian Pivot to Asia,” The Asan Forum, Special Forum Vol. 2, No. 6 (Nov.)

“Introduction--Five Pivots to Asia: Comparisons and Overall Impact,” The Asan Forum, Special Forum Vol. 2, No. 6 (Nov.)

Changrok Soh is Professor at the Graduate School of International Studies (GSIS), Korea University. After graduated from the Department of International Relations at Seoul National University, he received his Ph.D. as well as MALD from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University. He had served as Dean of Graduate School of International Studies and Division of International Studies at Korea University in 2006- 2008.

Dr. Soh is currently a member of UN Human Rights Council Advisory Committee and President of Human Asia (formally, the Asia Center for Human Rights). He is also an International Human Rights Committee Commissioner of National Human Rights Commission of Korea.

His most recent publications include, “Cosmopolitan Memories in East Asia: Revisiting and Reinventing the Second World War,” “Multilateral Cooperation to Advocate Human Security in East Asia,” “Regional Governance of North Korean Human Rights,” “The Refugee Act of Korea: The Limits of Civil Society,” and “Extending Corporate Liability of Human Rights Violations in Asia.”

Akio Takahara is Professor of Contemporary Chinese Politics at the Graduate School of Law and Politics, the University of Tokyo, and is now Visiting Scholar at the School of International Studies, Peking University. He received his DPhil in 1988 from the University of Sussex, and later spent several years as Visiting Scholar at the Consulate-General of Japan in Hong Kong (1989-91) and the Japanese Embassy in Beijing (1996-98), and at the Fairbank Center for East Asian Research, Harvard University (2005-06). Before joining the University of Tokyo, he taught at J. F. Oberlin University (1991-95) and Rikkyo University (1995-2005). He also served as a Member of the Governing Body of the Institute of Development Studies, UK (1999-2003), and President of the Japan Association for Asian Studies (2009-11). He currently serves as the senior fellow of the Tokyo Foundation, adjunct fellow of the Japan Institute of International Affairs, and senior fellow of the Japan Forum on International Relations. His publications include The Politics of Wage Policy in Post-Revolutionary China, (Macmillan, 1992), Beyond the Borders: Contemporary Asian Studies Volume One (Keio University Press, 2008, co-editor, in Japanese), The History of Japan-China Relations 1972~2012 Volume One Politics (University of Tokyo Press, 2012, co-editor, in Japanese), Modern History of Japan-China Relations (Yuhikaku Publishing Co., 2013, co-author, in Japanese), and To the Era of Developmentalism, 1972-2014, Series on China's Modern History, Volume 5 (Iwanami Shoten, 2014, co-author, in Japanese).

Hitoshi Tanaka is the chairman of the Institute for International Strategy at the Japan Research Institute, Ltd. He has also been a senior fellow at the Japan Center for International Exchange and a visiting professor at the Graduate School of Public Policy, University of Tokyo after retiring from Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Japan in 2005 as Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs. In the Foreign Ministry Mr. Tanaka held various posts which include Director-General of the Asian and Oceanian Affairs Bureau (2001–02) and the Economic Affairs Bureau (2000–01); Consul-General in San Francisco (1998–2000); and Deputy Director-General of the North American Affairs Bureau (1996–98). Mr. Tanaka holds a B.A. in law from Kyoto University and B.A./ M.A. in PPE from Oxford University. He writes various articles both in Japanese and English including East Asia Insights (<http://www.icie.or.jp/insights/>).

Taehee Whang is an Associate Professor at Division of International Studies, Korea University. After receiving the PhD from the University of Rochester in 2007, he has worked at Texas A&M University as an Assistant Professor for five years. He joined Korea University on September 2012. His research and teaching interest includes international relations, international political economy, political methodology, and politics of Northeast Asia. His dissertation focuses on economic sanctions as a foreign policy instrument, and investigates the link between the increased use of economic sanctions and their effectiveness from various perspectives. He is also engaged in projects that develop econometric models that directly incorporate insights suggested by game theoretic models such as signaling, learning, and reputation. He has published in a variety of manuscripts in peer-reviewed journals, including American Journal of Political Science (2013), International Organization (forthcoming), International Studies Quarterly (2011, 2010), Political Analysis (2010), Journal of Peace Research (2014, 2010), Journal of Theoretical Politics (2013), and Journal of Transport Geography (2011). (twng@korea.ac.kr)

Wang Zhengyi, “Changjiang Scholars” distinguished professor and chair, Department of International Political Economy, School of International Studies of Peking University. He is one of founders to promote IPE studies in China and has published a series of books and articles on international political economy, Asian Pacific regionalism, China’s political economy and social reconstruction. His recent works include General Theory of International Political Economy (2010), “Contending East Asian Regional Identity: market-led, Institutions or Social Reconstruction?”(2010), “Researching International Relations in China: From security to international political economy”(2010), “Rise of China: the end of the capitalist world economy or performance of it in 21th century?”(2013).

Zha Daojiong is a Professor of International Political Economy at the School of International Studies, Peking University, and an expert in Chinese energy policies and food and water security in Asia.

Dr. Zha is also active in consulting with Chinese government agencies, having been invited to join the board of counselors of the Chinese Association for International Understanding (under the administration of Department of International Affairs, the Chinese Communist Party), the China People's Institute of Foreign Affairs (under the administration of Ministry of Foreign Affairs), and the Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries (under the administration of Ministry of Foreign Affairs). He is co-author of Building a Neighborly Community: Post Cold War China, Japan, and Southeast Asia and author of The Political Economy of China's Oil Security. He is also the editor of Chinese Scholars View the World: Non-traditional Security.

Dr. Zha was formerly the Chairman of the Department of International Political Economy at Renmin University and the former Director at the university's Centre for International Energy Security. He was also the Associate Dean of the Graduate School of International Relations, International University of Japan, and served as the Programme Director of Contemporary China Studies within the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences at the University of Macao. He has held university teaching posts in the United States, Japan, Hong Kong and Macau. He earned his Doctorate degree in Political Science from the University of Hawaii at Manoa.

Professor Zha was recently named the inaugural Lowy Institute-Rio Tinto China Analyst Fellow. More information can be found here: www.lowyinstitute.org/people/dr-zha-daojiong, <http://vimeo.com/55334604>

Zhang Qingmin is Professor and Chair of the Department of Diplomacy and Foreign Affairs, the School of International Studies Peking University. His teaching and research include Chinese Foreign Policy, Diplomatic Studies, Theory of Foreign Policy Analysis, and China and East Asia. His works include: author of China's Foreign Relations, U.S. Arms Sales Policy toward Taiwan: a Decision-Making Perspective, Contemporary China's Diplomacy and several dozen peer reviewed academic journal articles; coeditor of and contributor to dozens of books on Chinese foreign policy in both Chinese and English; translator of Woodrow Wilson and Colonel House: A Personality Studies by Alexander and Juliet George and Groupthink: Psychological Studies of Policy Decisions and Fiascoes by Irving Janis. He has been on the editorial board of Foreign Policy Analysis and The Hague Journal of Diplomatic Studies. He received his M.A. from Brigham Young University in Utah, USA and his Ph.D. from China Foreign Affairs University.

Zhu Feng is currently Executive Director of China Center for Collaborative Studies of the South China Sea, Nanjing University. He is also a senior research fellow at the China Center for Peace and Development, and Professor at Peking University's School of International Studies. He writes extensively on regional security in East Asia, the nuclear issue in North Korea, China-US military and diplomatic relations. As a leading Chinese security expert, Professor Zhu's recent book includes International Relations Theory and East Asian Security (2007), China's Ascent: Power, Security, and Future of International politics (co-edited with Professor Robert S. Ross, 2008), China-Japan Security Cooperation and Defense Communication: the Past, Present, and Future (Tokyo: Aiji Press, 2011). His upcoming book is the China-US Relations and the World Order (co-edited with Prof. G. John Ikenbery and Prof. Wang jisi, MacMillan, 2014). He sits on a couple of editorial boards of scholarly journals, consults independently for the Chinese government and the private sector, and comments frequently on television and radio and in the print media on Chinese foreign affairs and security policy. Professor Zhu began his undergraduate studies at the Department of International Politics at Peking University in 1981 and received his Ph.D. from Peking University in 1991.